Scalpel Orders Exceed Forecast

Occupational and Medical Innovations Limited ("OMI") today announced that it has confirmed US and Australian orders for its Safety Scalpel in May of $294,000. This exceeds last month's orders of $197,000, an increase of 49%.

Mr Keith Taske, OMI Joint Managing Director, said "this is a very pleasing result given the official USA launch of the Scalpel was at the Association of Peri-Operative Registered Nurses (AORN) conference in San Diego in March of this year. To exceed forecast sales this early is genuine market endorsement of a great product."

OMI were awarded the prestigious Australian Design Award in 2003 for its Safety Scalpel – a simple cartridge system that encapsulates the blade allowing it to be loaded and removed without risk.

OMI has two other products that are due to go to market soon - The Safety Retractable Syringe through Terumo will reach the market in volume in Australia by end June 2004. In mid April Mr Taske held discussions with BBraun in the USA regarding global distribution of the Safe IV Access Valve. These discussions are encouraging and progressing.

Mr Taske added that "OMI is More than a Syringe Company; it is a Multi Medical Device Company. Our continuing strategy is to launch locally in the Australian market and then distribute globally. Our people have recently returned from a series of overseas meetings with a view to establish global distribution networks for our full range of products and we are more than satisfied with our progress to date."
